Collection Title: Saint Joseph's University Records (formerly Saint Joseph's College)

Date Range: 1851-2019

Bulk Dates: 1960-1990

Finding Aid created by: Lesley Carey and Christopher Dixon, 2019

Creator: Saint Joseph's University (formerly Saint Joseph's College)

Extent: 815.92 linear feet

Location: Archives and Special Collections, basement floor, Drexel Library, and Hopkins Room, 3rd floor, Post Learning Commons.

Abstract: The Saint Joseph's University Records (formerly Saint Joseph's College) houses the institutional, and organizational records of Saint Joseph's University. This collection, which dates from 1851-2019, with bulk dates of 1960-1990, consists of photographs; including negatives and slides, correspondence, documents; including records, minutes, memoranda and reports, ephemera, objects, memorabilia; including audio and video recordings, scrapbooks and yearbooks which document and evidence the history of the administrative and academic units and activities of SJU's administration, faculty, staff and students. Because of SJU's association with Old Saint Joseph's Church and the Jesuits who founded it, this collection not only documents the University's history and activities but adds to the knowledge of Catholic History in the City of Philadelphia and its surrounding areas.

Saint Joseph's University which is currently a Jesuit, Catholic co-educational institution, began as an all-male college in 1851. It is an institution whose history is intertwined with the religious, educational, and social history of the city of Philadelphia as well as the history of the Catholic church in Philadelphia. Old St. Joseph's Church was founded by Father Joseph Greaton (1679–1753), an English Jesuit who came to Philadelphia from Maryland in 1729 to establish a mission. Father Barbelin was a pastor and educator who founded Saint Joseph's College continuing the work of Father Greaton. He founded Saint Joseph's Hospital and established Saint Joseph's College, Philadelphia, serving as its first and third president.

This collection gives a view of the history of Catholic Education in the Philadelphia area. While not complete in all areas and series, it speaks to the history and migration of Catholic schools in the Philadelphia area from their downtown locations, to the 1920s migration of many schools to the surrounding suburbs.

Language: The bulk of the materials are in English. There are also some materials in Latin, French and Italian.

Acquisition information: Materials have been collected from various departments and offices of Saint Joseph's University, Saint Joseph's College and from Old Saint Joseph's Church where the school originated. There have been various donations. For more details, ask in the Archives.

Access Restrictions: This collection is open for researchers, however, there are some restricted materials which are noted in the box list.

Copyright: Researchers are responsible for determining copyright of materials used in their publications. Advice on determining copyright information is available at the University.

Preferred citation: [item], folder (if titled or numbered), box, Saint Joseph's University Records, Saint Joseph's University Archives and Special Collections.

History: Saint Joseph's University which is currently a Jesuit, Catholic co-educational institution, began as an all-male college in 1851. It is an institution whose history is intertwined with the religious, educational, and social history of the city of Philadelphia as well as the history of the Catholic church in Philadelphia. Saint Joseph's College opened on September 15, 1851, with 30 students attending Mass at Saint Joseph's Church on Willings Alley and then going on to their assigned classes, near Walnut and Fourth Streets, one block from Independence Hall, in a building adjacent to the church.

Since 1741, a Jesuit college in Philadelphia had been planned for by Joseph Greaton, S.J., the first resident pastor of Old St. Joseph's. Fr. Greaton's plans were delayed by the suppression of the Jesuits (1773-1814) and dissension within the Philadelphia Catholic community. Saint Joseph's College was founded by Felix J. Barbelin, S.J. Father Barbelin was also its first president. In January 1856, the College moved from Old Saint Joseph's to a larger site on Filbert Street. Due to financial difficulties, the college returned to its Willings Alley location in 1860. Shortly after, Saint Joseph's struggled to remain in existence throughout the Civil War as enrollments were much smaller.

With the purchase of a city block between 17th and 18th Streets, fronting on Stiles Street, as a new site, Saint Joseph's future improved. Burchard Villiger, S.J., one of the original members of the faculty, became its president in 1866. A steady and strong growth, both in student enrollment grew and more academic programs were offered by September 2, 1889, when the College moved from Willings Alley to Stiles Street.

In November 1922, a building campaign to raise $1,000,000 was organized and successfully implemented by Matthew Fortier, S.J. Subsequently, Saint Joseph's College was able to purchase

23 acres in the Overbrook area at the western edge of the city. Construction of a building in modern collegiate Gothic architectural style began in 1925. Its dedication took place on November 14, 1927. Since that move, Saint Joseph's has been located on City Avenue.

In 1943, an evening college was founded. It was also at this time that Saint Joseph's acquired several homes adjacent to the campus, which were converted to its first student residences. Through the 1960s, Saint Joseph's experienced even more physical growth. Five residences were added to the campus, including the nine-acre estate of Margaret Gest, a Jesuit faculty residence, the Villiger classroom building, a science center, the Drexel Library building, a six-story student dormitory and expansion of the Campion Student Center.

In the fall of 1970, the College began accepting women as full-time students, officially becoming a co-educational institution. The Secretary of Education of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania recognized Saint Joseph's as a university on July 24, 1978. The corporate charter was formally changed to reflect university status on December 27, 1978.

From 1978 through 1982, the University experienced a strong period of growth and development. The University added a College of Business and Administration to complement the existing College of Arts & Sciences, and added graduate programs including health administration, criminal justice, gerontology, public safety and computer science.

Throughout the 1980s and 90s, Saint Joseph's shifted dramatically from a commuter school with a Philadelphia base to a residential institution drawing a majority of its students from outside of Pennsylvania. As the University welcomed larger classes, the number of full-time faculty increased by nearly 80 percent.

Approximately 45 Jesuits live on campus with 15 serving as faculty (as of the 2016-2017 year). The University's Jesuit community lives in the Loyola Center, directly across the street from Barbelin Hall. The Loyola Center joins Manresa Hall, the infirmary for Jesuits. The property features a Carriage House which serves as a meeting place and guest house. Other Jesuit residences include St. Alphonsus House (at 5800 Overbrook Avenue) and Faber Hall (39 Berwick Road).

The University extensively uses its Jesuit identity in its branding. It began the Magis ("greater") campaign in 2013 to highlight commitment to living "For the greater glory of God" (Ad maiorem Dei gloriam), the motto of the Society of Jesus.

SJU also promotes the Jesuit principle of cura personalis or "care for the whole person." Undergraduates must complete a general education program that focuses heavily on traditional liberal arts disciplines. Every general education class is titled "154", which stands for the year 1540 AD when the Society of Jesus was accepted by the Pope.

On September 27, 2015, Pope Francis, a Jesuit, made a stop at the university during his two-day visit to Philadelphia.

To accommodate the increased student body, Saint Joseph's added the McShain Hall residence center, Rashford and Lannon Halls and the Michael J. Morris Quadrangle townhouses. A new Chapel of Saint Joseph, named for revered longtime administrator Michael J. Smith, S.J. was built in 1995. Mandeville Hall was built to house the renamed Erivan K. Haub School of Business, and the original Villiger building on Overbrook Avenue was renovated, made the new home of the University's social science departments and re-named John R. Post '60 Hall.

The 2008 purchase of the adjacent 38-acre Episcopal Academy in Merion was Saint Joseph's largest expansion since the move to City Avenue. It was then named the James J. Maguire '58 Campus and is home to multiple academic departments, athletic fields, the Saint Joseph's University Gallery and the Kinney Center for Autism Education and Support. That same year, the University opened Hawks Landing, a parking and retail facility on 54th Street. The following fall, the Alumni Memorial Fieldhouse was expanded into the Michael J. Hagan '85 Arena.

The John R. Post '60 Academic Center and the John and Maryanne Hennings Post Learning Commons were completed in 2012, bringing high-tech facilities and collaborative learning environments to the University with a three-story, addition to the Drexel Library. The new Villiger Hall, a 400-bed residence hall for first-year students opened in August 2012, on the corner of Cardinal and City Avenues.

In 2012, Saint Joseph's acquired the former Cardinal's Residence from the Archdiocese of Philadelphia. Contiguous to the University's 48-acre Philadelphia campus, the 8.9-acre property includes a three-story, main house and two additional buildings. The property has been renamed the Marcy Dugan Wolfington Campus and the main building has been transformed into the Maguire Wolfington Welcome Center.

Saint Joseph's University educates over 9,200 undergraduate, graduate, and doctoral students each year through the Erivan K. Haub School of Business, the College of Arts and Sciences, the Program of Professional & Liberal Studies, and the Haub Degree Completion Program. The University offers over 60 undergraduate majors, 53 graduate programs, 28 study-abroad programs, 12 special-study options, a co-op program, a joint degree program with Thomas Jefferson University, and an Ed.D in Educational Leadership. It has 17 centers and institutes, including the Kinney Center for Autism Education & Support and the Pedro Arrupe Center for Business Ethics.

Saint Joseph's University provides a student-centered education in the liberal arts. The University's mission is striving to be an inclusive and diverse community that educates and cares for the whole person, encourages and models lifelong commitment to thinking critically, makes ethical decisions, pursues social justice, and finds God in all things.

Biographical information: Father Joseph Greaton, S.J.:

Old Saint Joseph's Church was founded by Fr. Joseph Greaton (1679–1753), an English Jesuit who came to Philadelphia from Maryland in 1729 to establish a mission. He originally celebrated Mass in his house at 321 Willings Alley. Father Greaton built the first chapel in 1733, almost certainly a house-chapel attached to his residence. He funded the Chapel with his inheritance from his English family, he had been born into a wealthy Royalist family at Ilfracombe in Devonshire, England in 1679. Unlike many priests, he accepted the inheritance but used it to fund his mission in America. His intention was to start a school but his plans were not completed and were delayed by the Jesuit Suppression and dissent among Philadelphia Catholics.

Father Felix Joseph Barbelin, S.J.: Father Barbelin was a pastor and educator who founded Saint Joseph's College continuing the work of Father Greaton. He was born in Lunéville, Lorraine, France, May 30, 1808 and died in Philadelphia, Pa., June 8, 1869. After attending French schools and seminaries, he became a Jesuit in Maryland in 1831, and was ordained on Sept. 22, 1835, and taught at Georgetown University. He served as an assistant at Saint Joseph's, Philadelphia, and became pastor there in 1844, remaining in that post until his death. He inaugurated the first parish sodality at Saint Joseph's (1841) and established a St. Vincent de Paul conference and a free school for girls in Philadelphia. The Italian congregation he organized developed into the first Italian Catholic parish in Philadelphia. He gathered the first African American congregation in Philadelphia and established a school for African American children. He founded Saint Joseph's Hospital and established Saint Joseph's College, Philadelphia, serving as its first and third president. He also conducted a night school for adults.

Father Burchard Villiger, S. J.: (1816?-1903), a Swiss immigrant Jesuit priest who had served as director of studies at the original Saint Joseph's College when it opened in 1851, moved to the area near Girard Avenue and 17th Street in North Philadelphia in 1868. Intending to establish a "Catholic University of Philadelphia" at the site, Father Villiger began by founding the Parish of the Holy Family. He had a chapel, rectory, and parish school built in the late 1860s/early 1870s. Father Villiger served as President of Santa Clara University in 1861-1865 and then became President of Saint Joseph's College in 1893-1896. He had a great interest in religious relics and collected many of them for the Church of the Gesu.

Scope and Contents: The Saint Joseph's University Records (formerly Saint Joseph's College) houses the institutional, and organizational records of Saint Joseph's University. This collection, which dates from 1851-2019, with bulk dates of 1960-1990, consists of photographs; including negatives and slides, correspondence, documents; including records, minutes, memoranda and reports, ephemera, objects, memorabilia; including audio and video recordings, scrapbooks and yearbooks which document and evidence the history of the administrative and academic units and activities of SJU's administration, faculty, staff and students. Because of SJU's association with Old Saint Joseph's Church and the Jesuits who founded it, this collection not only documents the University's history and activities but adds to the knowledge of Catholic History in the City of Philadelphia and its surrounding areas.

This collection gives a view of the history of Catholic Education in the Philadelphia area. While not complete in all areas and series, it speaks to the history and migration of Catholic schools in the Philadelphia area from their downtown locations, to the 1920s migration of many schools to the surrounding suburbs. The Jesuit Series also clarifies the activities of area Jesuits, in, near and around Philadelphia. In addition, records relating to the running of Saint Joseph's University give a fuller picture of the processes that shaped its current policies, governance and activities. Memorabilia of certain key figures in Saint Joseph's University history like Father Dennis Comey, S.J. and Cardinal John P. Foley adds to the available biographical and historical information on these men's lives. The collection is diverse, with materials that would especially interest researchers of local history and Catholic history.

The materials can be basically divided into 5 different series; History of Saint Joseph's University, Faculty, Administration, Students and the Jesuit Collection. Within these series are a large number of subseries.

The History of Saint Joseph's University contains records and documents relating to the College/University's founding. Some of the documents are original and some are copies of originals. There are records relating to the Church of the Gesu and Old Saint Joseph's Church which are both associated with SJU and materials about early student activities including student's participation in WWI. There is also documentation of the College's move to Overbrook, materials on the College/University's Centennial and materials collected to support the writing of the University history by David Contasta.

The Series of materials on faculty, administration and students are divided into additional subseries which are noted in the box list. While there is some earlier and later material most of the items are from the period of 1960-1990 and provide details about the processes of governance in administration and faculty committees and curriculum. There is also a large amount of material on student activities both in and out of the classroom for this time period.

The Jesuit Series includes materials on Jesuit education, including SJU participation in the groups; Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities (AJCU) and Jesuit Education Association (JEA). There are Jesuit publication and Jesuit Yearbooks. Memorabilia in this series include diplomas, prayer cards, certificates, missals and calendars. There are also memorabilia from Father William M. King, S.J., Daniel O'Conors, and Michael Smith, S.J. Audiotapes from Xavier Damians and Herbert Smith, S.J. are also part of this series. A group of materials from Pope Francis' visit in 2015 has been collected.

Arrangement and Processing notes: An effort was made in the re-organization of the collection to encompass the work done by previous librarians and archivists on the collection. This included using series names and abbreviations that had already been used in previous efforts to organize the materials. It was noted that in previous box lists some material was listed that had not yet been collected but was planned to be in the collection at a later time. Some of these categories were left out of the current box list as the materials had never come into the archives. Most of the collection is processed to a series or subseries level with each box noted. It is planned that some of the more significant materials will be further processed to a folder level when there is time to do so.

A series of photographs has been processed to an item level after the archives received a grant from the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission to do so. Each one has an item number and most have been digitized and placed in the University Archives' Past Perfect System. The boxes of these items received box numbers and the item numbers are noted in the box list. Some of the collection had detailed finding aids already written for it. This is noted in the box list.

The steps for minimally processing a collection written about by Mark A. Greene and Dennis Meissner in More Product, Less Process: Revamping Traditional Archival Processing were followed although fasteners like paper clips which are easier to remove were removed. When older or more fragile items were encountered they were given more protection and/or preservation.

Previously done inventories of certain items are noted in the box list, as are any restricted materials.
