INCLUSION RESOURCE GUIDE

A LISTING OF EMPLOYERS COMMITTED TO SUPPORTING INCLUSION & DIVERSITY EFFORTS AT SJU, PRESENTED BY THE CAREER DEVELOPMENT CENTER ON BEHALF OF THEIR EMPLOYER PARTNERS

www.sju.edu/careers
Thank you for your interest in the Inclusion Resource Guide. This guide includes information on employers who want to offer their time and resources in support of inclusion and diversity initiatives on campus. These employers are committed to recruiting a diverse workforce that is supported in an inclusive work environment.

If you would like to further explore a partnership with an employer, please contact the person in that listing directly. When you reach out, mention that you received the person’s contact information from the Career Development Center’s Inclusion Resource Guide, and include which organization you are representing and what you are looking to explore further. It may be helpful to set up a phone call or meeting with the employer.

While these employers are looking to partner outside of recruiting, focusing more on inclusion and diversity initiatives, it’s important to note that they are all open to working with, and if appropriate, recruiting from, a variety of majors. They are larger companies from diverse industries who have many different departments, and are largely more interested in a student’s skill sets than major. This is good information to have if you speak with members that are interested in exploring job or internship opportunities with these employers.

The Career Development Center is also available to partner with your organization to present on a number of different career and professional development topics, some of which include interviewing, internships, networking, values, career fair prep, resume writing, as well as several other topics. If you’d like to set up a session or workshop for your members, or if you have any questions about the best way to reach out to the employers in this guide, please contact Lisa Hansinger at ehansing@sju.edu.
